Overview

In an effort to better align the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) standards for hazardous waste with the practical realities of how hazardous waste pharmaceuticals are managed in the health care facility setting, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recently promulgated a final rule that establishes a completely new set of management standards for hazardous waste pharmaceuticals in health care facilities. The rule also prohibits the sewerage of hazardous waste pharmaceuticals and deletes the hazardous waste listing for certain nicotine replacement therapies. Compliance with the rule will be especially challenging for long-term care facilities that previously have not been regulated under RCRA.

Participants will:

- Learn about the EPA's regulatory framework with respect to hazardous waste generally
- Understand the requirements of the new hazardous waste pharmaceuticals rule
- Come away with knowledge that you can use to hit the ground running with your compliance efforts

Faculty

Jennifer Hilliard is Of Counsel in the Healthcare Practice with Arnall Golden Gregory.

Ms. Hilliard focuses her practice on long-term care and aging services issues generally. She has extensive experience with nursing home regulatory matters, compliance and operations. Additionally, she has significant experience with Federal public policy and government affairs in such related areas as Medicare and Medicaid regulation, home health and hospice regulation, DEA controlled substances regulation, OSHA and other labor and employment issues affecting aging services providers, and federal non-profit tax issues.

Prior to joining AGG, Ms. Hilliard served for over 18 years in a variety of legal and advocacy-related capacities at LeadingAge, a Washington, DC based trade association for non-profit long-term care and aging services providers.
